

Michael Goglia is the healthcare market manager for Elkem Silicones supporting the biocompatible materials direction in both North and South America. He has 12+ years' experience in the silicone industry, previously in a sales role supporting all the diverse markets silicones play a part in, then most recently taking on a marketing role focused on materials used in the medical device and pharmaceutical industries. He has a BA in Marketing from Stockton University and currently resides in New Jersey working out of our East Brunswick corporate office.